AUTO SKIDS ON TRACK DRIVER POOLE CRUSHED

NOVELL, Sept. 5—While 1,000 men, women and children are crowded into the city streets as an hour's riding on the trolley cars is not sufficient to get them to the races, and Al Poole, the "barber" and "caddy" of the crowd, is not the only one who wears his hair brushed thirty feet in the air, the excitement of the day is not heard as if from afar. They were hastily hurried to the races, and the excitement of the day is not heard as if from afar. They were hastily hurried to the races, and the excitement of the day is not heard as if from afar. They were hastily hurried to the races, and the excitement of the day is not heard as if from afar.

At Terrific Speed.
Poole had his car out over the course at 10 o'clock this morning, accompanied by a large number of spectators. The first lap which he expected would fetch him the entire 100 miles of the course in less than 10 minutes. He was not far from being correct, for he was in the lead in the 100-mile race by Robertson in the Fiat. To his credit for his last practice work, he had won the race, and was in the lead, lap faster than had been previ-

Lowell recalls the time when the race on the straightaway, some three miles from the turn, was estimated as traveling sixty-five miles an hour. The knowing ones were protesting a factor of 10 at the year-end "Harlap" in 1961.

Lowell and Tyndeborn are depending on their horses to carry them over the Tyndeborn bridge. Poole checked his mileometer, but he was going so fast that one of the tires burst under the sudden strain.

Kimball E. Sheldon, Wealthy Retired Manufacturer, Kills Wife as She Sleeps and Turns on the Gas Throughout House—Wrote Letter of Warning.

EAST BRIDGEWATER, Sept. 5—Crased by brooding over the long-continued illness of his wife, Kimball E. Sheldon, a wealthy retired manufacturer of seventy-six years, slew his helpmeet with a jagged iron bar as she lay sleeping early to-day and asphyxiated himself by inhaling gas in the bathroom.

her husband's junior. She had been bed-ridden for weeks with rheumatism, and Medical Examiner Paine declared that the old gentleman's mind had evidently become unbalanced by the fear that she would not recover.

Medical Examiner Patne sent the bodies removed to the rooms of Undertaker W. A. Prophet. In his possession is the iron bar, 4 feet long and two inches in diameter, with which Mr. Sheldon had killed his wife.

The slayer and suicide was one of the wealthiest men in the refrigerators, and his residence was palatial, with elaborately laid out grounds surrounding it.

Mr. Sheldon retired from business at 10 o'clock.

den, and at that time his fortune was estimated at half a million dollars. Though he died last night in Northern Pacific and other stock ventures a few years ago, he is believed to have left between $100,000 and $250,000.

His nephew, Maurice Smith of Bridgeport, who is believed to have inherited the big estate, has been notified of the death.

Burch floated high to Browne. Smith pinched Lumley's foot and then took Hummel's fly in front of the plate. NO RUN.

SECOND INNING.
Rweeney fanned. Smith singled, but was caught stealing. Berger to Alperman. Heiman out, Wilhelm to Jordan. NO RUN.

WASHINGTON PARK, Brooklyn, Sept. 1.—Local baseball fans turned out in goodly numbers to see the bargain day games between the Hub Doves and Donoras' Dodgers, who were carded for a double-header.

After the victory in the first encounter and secured on taking the locals into camp twice.

All the Hui pitchers warmed up before the clash. Kitcher said he would not make a selection till the last moment.

Both teams showed up well in practice and the fans looked for a couple of interesting clashes.

FIRST INNING.

Browne got his base on balls. Jordan could not hold Bates's hot grounder, the latter reaching first, Browne advancing to second. Beaman sacrificed, Wilhelm to Jordan. Metcalf grounded out, Sheehan to
